DOCTOR preps volunteer before subject's body is frozen

A team of top scientists allowed themselves to be "killed" during a series of controlled experiments to determine if the soul continues to exist after the body ceases to function.

Incredibly, reports now surfacing in Europe indicate a mental state does live on after death. And the soul meets with anguish or bliss in settings amazingly similar to Heaven and Hell.

Sketchy French and German reports said the experiments were conducted on four volunteer scientists in a sealed wing of a medical clinic near Magdeburg, Germany, last month.

Details are lacking, but information provided by a scientist close to the experiment suggests that it succeeded beyond the research team's wildest dreams. In telephone conversations with colleagues in Europe, Dr. Yury Okulov said "the subjects were frozen to death under very strict clinical conditions, thawed after 40 minutes, and in three cases revived. Two have responded positively to questions about an afterlife."

Austrian research biologist Franz Jopke has not been in direct contact with the German clinic but he told the press that "it is obvious they have pushed the science of cryogenics — the freezing and thawing of human tissue — to its ultimate, terrifying limit."

Newspaper accounts based on interviews with German sources confirmed that only three of the four scientists survived the experiment.

One, a Yugoslavian histologist, recalled nothing of the ordeal. The remaining survivors, a Soviet woman scientist and a French psychiatrist, gave vivid, but dramatically different, descriptions of an afterlife.

The psychiatrist's experience was a literal nightmare. According to the reports, "he was hysterical and had to be sedated after he was revived.

"He was in a highly agitated state, raving about the bloody skeleton of a dead relative, who led him through a tunnel."

The Soviet woman described a much different experience. Reports said she spoke of being overcome with a sense of beauty, joy and comfort. She too felt the presence of relatives, but in a loving, caring way. She was an atheist prior to the experiment but has since converted to Christianity. The fourth subject, an Albanian scientist, died.

German officials will neither confirm nor deny that the experiment ever took place, and outraged scientists and clergymen around the world are demanding an official investigation into the experiment.

Car smashes bicyclist into hundreds of pieces — but doctors save his life!

Messenger boy Howard Lewis, 19, tried to cut through traffic on a busy Sydney, Australia, street — and wound up taking a shortcut to hell.

A news photographer snapping street scenes captured this spine-chilling shot of the ill-fated teen as he was run down by a speeding car — sending his head crashing through the windshield and nearly ripping off his right foot at the ankle.

Lewis suffered severe facial cuts and over 100 broken bones. Doctors were forced to amputate his foot — but miraculously, he survived the horrifying crash and is scheduled to be released from the hospital next month.

DOCTOR SHORTAGE SENDING SICK FOLKS TO VETERINARIANS

The medical crisis in this country will soon be so severe, an expert says, that millions of people will be standing in line behind dogs and cats — waiting for veterinarians to treat their ailments!

Already the shortage of doctors in rural America has closed clinics and left thousands of country folk with no medical care except for veterinarians, according to Nick Cooper, head of Americans for Better Health Care. The crisis threatens to get worse with each passing month as doctors quit practicing to avoid astronomical malpractice insurance.

"There's going to come a time when half of rural Americans will be dependent on vets for medical care," says Cooper, who is demanding federally funded scholarships for med students.

"They'll be vying for appointments with sick cows, for Pete's sake. Imagine what it's going to feel like to walk into a doctor's office and be told, 'You'll have to wait. The turtle was here first.'"

Veterinarians receive training in treating infections, physical problems like heart ailments and liver malfunctions, diseases, broken bones and countless other complaints.

They perform surgery and regularly prescribe medications for their animal clients that can also be used by humans.

Cooper says the shift from animal to human practice wouldn't be difficult for the average competent vet — and will probably become necessary as health care for people becomes harder and harder to come by. But the switch won't bode well for the future of health care in America, the health activist says.

Nick Cooper

"Within 10 years, many of us can expect to get antibiotics from our vets instead of our physicians," Cooper says. "We can expect emergency treatment for burns, cuts and broken bones at the vet's office. We will even be making appointments for minor surgery with our vets, because the doctors will be so busy treating patients with major problems that Americans are going to be in bad shape. And America's pets are going to be suffering, too, because vets will be too busy — and too expensive — to treat them."

Cooper says taxpayers can head off the medical crisis by writing their Congressional representatives and demanding that they support legislation to provide scholarships for medical students.

YOUR HANDS REVEAL IF YOU HAVE A BAD HEART, SAYS NEW STUDY!

Your hands can reveal if you have a possible heart defect, says an expert.

"There are specific warning signals in the hands that can alert you to the fact you may have a heart defect or disease," said Dr. Aaron M. Stern, a cardiologist.

"If your hands show certain characteristics it's advisable to ask your doctor about it."

By MIKE FOSTER
Weekly World News

More than two million Americans could have hands that reveal signs of heart defects or heart disease, which could show up later in life, a new study shows. Dr. Stern cited these examples:

● Tiny lumps, or nodules, just under the skin. This can indicate rheumatic fever, especially when accompanied by skin rash and arthritis of the wrist. In such cases there is a 90 percent chance of heart disease, usually involving the heart valves.

● Little blood spots under the skin of the hand or fingernails. These spots, which often look like little splinters underneath the fingernails, may actually be the symptom of a serious blood infection that settles in the heart lining.

● Raised orange spots under the skin — often around the wrist. They may be a warning sign of a hereditary condition that clogs blood vessels with cholesterol, which can lead to high blood pressure, strokes or heart attacks, even at an early age.

● Double-jointed wrists and fingers, accompanied by thin skin and hands that bruise easily. These symptoms may signify Ehlers-Danlos syndrome — and half the people who have this condition will develop a weakness in the walls of blood vessels that make a person prone to internal bleeding.

In some cases there is also a weakness of the heart valves and a heart defect will develop later in life.

● Very long, thin, spider-like fingers that appear to be double-jointed. This could be a sign of Marfan's syndrome, a disorder of the connective tissues, which may involve stretching of the heart valves, and, over a period of time, valve leakage.

Between 40 and 50 percent of the people who have this condition develop a heart defect.

● Puffy hands, with ring fingers shorter than all the other fingers, and narrow fingernails with an exceptionally high arch. In some cases, the pinkie finger turns inward. All of these are symptoms of Turner's syndrome.

Thirty-five percent of people with this condition have a heart defect, a narrowing of the heart's main artery, the aorta.

Dr. Lawrence Kuhns, who is familiar with Dr. Stern's work, agreed that a person's hands often disclose signs of heart disease.

"The hands can speak for the heart," he said. "People who notice these conditions in their hands should check with their doctors."

Artificial insemination will turn us into a nation of morons, warn experts!

By MIKE FOSTER / Weekly World News

The artificial insemination boom is spawning an unfortunate side effect, say experts — who warn that by the year 2071, the U.S. population will become a bunch of inbred, babbling idiots!

"Because of infertility, an increasing number of American babies are fathered with the help of donated sperm," explained Professor Ernest Cashway, a Washington, D.C.-based genetic disease expert. "Some anonymous sperm donors sire more than 1,000 children apiece, most of whom are born less the same community. When those boys and girls grow up, they will often meet and marry — not realizing they're half-siblings, committing incest."

Gregory Keogh

The inevitable result of such unions is well known, he maintained.

"Their children will suffer many birth defects, including webbed toes, extra fingers and, most alarmingly, mental retardation.

"The succeeding generation will of course experience the same thing — causing the problem to multiply rapidly.

"These 'village idiot' types will become increasingly prevalent and within three generations — or 75 years — our people will be reduced to simpletons, with the average I.Q. hovering at 45."

PROFESSOR Ernest Cashway

Top Washington futurist Gregory L. Keogh wholly concurs with Prof. Cashway's frightening vision, noting that the $100 billion-a-year sperm donor industry is virtually unregulated.

"You'll begin to notice the interbreeding effect in a few years when young people all start to look the same," he said. "You'll call out to a 'neighbor boy' — only to realize it's a stranger."

Keogh believes our high-tech lifestyle will begin to disappear in the next century.

"Since a majority of people will be incapable of operating machinery more complex than a plow, we will slowly return to a simpler, more agrarian society.

"On the upside, technological threats such as nuclear war and loss of vital data to computers will be a thing of the past."

Keogh also foresees a comeback for many of the art forms of a simpler time.

"By the year 2071, more Americans will actually know how to play the banjo than know how to read," he predicts.

"We can look forward to sitting peacefully around the campfire, listening to banjo music and playing simple games."

Perhaps you know me from TV.... newspapers.

More and more people confirm my supernatural powers: I ALREADY KNOW TOMORROW TODAY.

But one thing is especially important to me: I want to help my FRIENDS all over the world, quickly and effectively.

Today, I want to help you!

This time I want to do it with money. WITH CASH (later I want to help you in other ways: job... private life... psychological problems).

If you need money urgently, truly urgently, then I is a means with which you will succeed:

the »GOLDEN« Pendulum!

More and more people are using it in Europe. With fantastic results. This method is brand new in America. That is why you should be one of the first who will WIN THE PRIZE OF HIS LIFE with this method (before there are thousands of FIRST PRIZE WINNERS). On request, I will send you such a pendulum.

And the money can start pouring in to you!

First you must decide where you want to win a lot of money: in LOTTO... in the LOTTERY (where legally permissible). At the RACETRACK... etc. After that, I will show you how to use the pendulum. You take the "object" into your hand and let it swing (it is easy – very easy. Everyone can do it.) Then you put the number 1... 2... 3... 17... 30... 35... ? And your »GOLDEN« Pendulum will always answer immediately: YES or NO. (That takes a few minutes, but what's 10 minutes for perhaps millions of dollars...?)

Then you play the numbers that you have found: in LOTTO, in the LOTTERY, at the RACE TRACK, (where legally permissible).

IT IS THAT SIMPLE TO BE LUCKY. YOU ONLY HAVE TO KNOW HOW!

If you want to become my FRIEND today, then I want to help you!

WHO IS HANUSSEN?

His predecessor was brutally killed by the Nazis in Germany in 1933 – because he had prophesied the exact Hitler's Reich. HANUSSEN himself was tortured in Afghanistan... under the powers of circumstances. But this great misery developed his supernatural powers even more. He predicted GORBACHEV's top EARTHQUAKE in San Francisco... the BERLIN WALL... HANUSSEN has so many FRIENDS in Europe.

NOW HE IS IN AMERICA!

GIANT PLANET DEVASTATED BY KILLER COMET'S IMPACT!

JUPITER

By RANDY JEFFRIES
Weekly World News

HOUSTON — Stunned scientists say they now have absolute proof that life exists on Jupiter. They're receiving distress signals radioed from the devastated planet!

Off the record, NASA higher-ups are theorizing that the signals were prompted by the battering of Jupiter by comet fragments back in 1994.

"These signals can only be coming from an intelligent source," says Dr Lucas Marsh, a highly respected planetary astronomer with close ties to NASA.

"Contrary to what we've believed for years, we're not alone in the solar system. And based on our detailed interpretation of these signals, the inhabitants of the largest planet in our solar system are pleading to Earth for help."

Dr Marsh says NASA officials have absolutely confirmed that Jupiter is the source of the eerie signals, which began just weeks before Shoemaker-Levy 9 comet fragments began to pummel the giant planet.

Since the signals started before the bombardment began, it appears these beings knew the comet was about to hit.

And since the disaster, the transmissions continue to come, one every 14 minutes and 35 seconds.

They last exactly 13 seconds each.

"NASA has investigated every possibility that this could

"It's going to rock our world with a force 100,000 times more devastating than all the nuclear weapons now on Earth.

"Every living thing within thousands of miles will die instantly. The huge cloud of debris that rise from the impact will block out the sun and turn Earth into a giant freezer, wiping out all life."

Dr. Hoolower, who has many friends and colleagues at NASA and the Pentagon, says the coming disaster is common knowledge among world leaders.

"They've known about it since Shoemaker-Levy 9 was discovered in March 1993. Astronomers rightly predicted that pieces of an exploded comet would hit Jupiter.

"U.S. officials are keeping the lid on this information to avoid worldwide panic. But the public has a right to know.

"The U.S. Army is gearing up to launch a barrage of nuclear missiles at the fragment.

computerized sensors have traced the point of origin directly to Jupiter.

"There's simply nowhere else they could be coming from."

One of the decoding specialists who has analyzed the mathematical pattern of the sounds says he and his staff are 99 percent sure the message is an SOS of some sort.

"It's difficult to explain to a layman," said the expert.

"But the frequency with which certain numbers occur in a coded message give us clues about its general nature. We can say with reasonable certainty that life-and-death urgency is being communicated."

NASA won't officially comment but Dr. Mirosch says signals appeared to be coming from two separate transmitters, one of which is there's not much the agency can do. "Jupiter is too far away. Even if we had the technology to send a rescue mission, it would take years to get there. By then, it would be too late."

DEADLY EPIDEMIC SWEEPING CUBA!

Bizarre disease makes victims laugh themselves to death!

HAVANA, Cuba — Health authorities in Cuba are scrambling to cope with a bizarre new epidemic in which victims break into fits of uncontrollable giggling — and actually die laughing within a few months!

By JENNIFER BROOKES
World Wild News

The agonizing deaths are caused by a rare disease called Kuru, which is nearly always fatal.

To date it has been reported in three rural villages, but officials say that it is spreading rapidly and may soon affect populations throughout the country.

"We are dealing with a dangerous virus here and we are frankly very worried," said Havana public health doctor Emilio Rodriguez.

"In some of the affected towns, dozens of men, women and children can be seen strolling the streets, giggling like idiots. It's only a matter of time before they lapse into a coma and die.

"It's the virus' effect on the brain that causes victims to laugh until they die — but they're certainly not having any fun.

"This is a horrible disease and people who get it suffer greatly."

Cuban health officials were in the middle of battling another disease — a mysterious ailment that causes nerve damage, dizziness, weight loss and blindness — when the new epidemic emerged. As headlines about the first epidemic faded, they were replaced by scare stories about the new laughing disease.

"We were just getting on top of one epidemic when the other one struck," Dr Rodriguez said.

"And the frightening thing is that we know we're dealing with Kuru but we still don't have a cure for it or a way to stop its progress. We're seeing 400 new cases every day now."

CASTRO concerned about his people.

Recently, Premier Fidel Castro toured the province of Camaguey where the main outbreak has occurred and he is concerned.

He has ordered emergency procedures to stop unnecessary travel to and out of the villages where Kuru has been detected.

Although American public health workers have not commented officially on the frightening new disease, some have spoken off the record about their fears.

"The Cubans are in desperate shape economically and they can't afford to wage an all-out battle to wipe out Kuru," said one official.

"So unless we help them out, it's only a matter of time before this thing comes into the United States through Miami.

"If that happens it could be a worse public health disaster than AIDS."

You can uncover your hidden talents and put them to work for you by following a few simple tips, say two top psychiatrists.

"We've all got hidden aptitudes and the ability to put them to work," said Dr Berthold Schwarz, a nationally known psychiatrist.

"If we'd only give ourselves half a chance, we'd be amazed by the abilities, talents and aptitudes bound up in ourselves."

By JENNIFER BROOKES
Weekly World News

Dr. Schwarz and Dr Leonard Cammer, another expert, offered the following tips for discovering and putting your hidden abilities to work.

● Be adventurous — By trying new things like foods, tasks, sports, hobbies etc., you develop an awareness of what your special talents might be.

● Listen to compliments — When someone gives you a pat on the back, listen [illegible] by. They could be giving you a key that will unlock talents you didn't know you had.

● Be observant — Look at your surroundings. At what other people are doing. You may observe someone doing something that you can do equally well or even better.

● Don't wilt under criticism — You don't have to accept criticism. Tell yourself that you've figured it out and it sounds reasonable to you — then go ahead and do your thing.

● Don't criticize yourself — If you keep knocking yourself, you'll never give your aptitudes a chance. Besides, all that time you waste criticizing yourself could be better spent developing some of your hidden talents.

● Accept opportunities to try new things — If someone offers you an opportunity to experience something new, always grab it. You may discover that you like the new experience and that you have a special talent for it.

● Ask questions — Ask your mate or a good friend if he or she thinks you are particularly good at something. They may point out an ability or talent that you weren't even aware of.

● Don't be afraid — When you think you've discovered a hidden talent, don't let fear of failure keep you from trying it out.

● Be optimistic — Instead of saying, "I don't know if I can" or "I'm not sure" or "I've never tried that," tell yourself, "I can do it." Once you think you can, you probably can.

● Volunteer for community activities — In the act of volunteering, you are thinking in positive terms of "can do." It's a way of putting your talents and abilities to work.

Meet the world's cleanest kitty!

THERE'S MORE THAN ONE WAY TO SPIN A CAT!

By JOE BERGER · Weekly World News

NEW YORK CITY — A courageous kitty named Sissy spent 45 mind-boggling minutes spinning and splashing in a high-speed washing machine — and survived the horrifying ride with barely a scratch!

"I opened the door to get my wash out of the machine and there was poor Sissy, soaked to the bone and looking more dead than alive," said her adoring owner Sonya Yanowski, 20.

"She let out a weak and little meow and I grabbed her and wrapped her in a blanket and rushed her to the vet thinking he was going to tell me it was too late to save her. But he checked her over, dried her off and said that except for a chill Sissy was in perfectly fine shape and ought to be as good as new in a few days.

"He said it was a miracle she'd survived at all, though — because if it'd been using the hot water cycle she'd have been boiled alive."

Poor Sissy's spine-chilling adventure began when she followed her mistress into the basement of their apartment building one afternoon as Sonya, carrying a load of wash, trudged down the stairs with a load of wash.

"That cat's not supposed to leave the apartment and she knows it, but she must've slipped down the stairs behind me when I wasn't looking," the student nurse told a reporter.

"I threw some clothes in the washer then went upstairs to get some thing I'd forgotten. She must have hopped into the washer to snuggle up to the clothes while I was gone.

"When I got back I tossed in the shirt I'd forgotten, shut the door and turned on the machine — sending that poor cat on the wildest ride of her life."

The battered tabby spent the night under observation in an animal hospital but was released early the next morning.

"Now that Sissy's back home, she's decided that she's a little too dangerous for there."

Here's why

5 EASY STEPS TO PUT THE ZING BACK INTO YOUR SEX LIFE!

You needn't let your marriage become dull and boring — because there's a way to turn it into a grand adventure and put new life into your sexual relations.

That's the inspiring message of marriage counselor Dr. Vincent D. Foley — who tells how to accomplish these goals in taking five vital steps.

Great advice for married couples ONLY!

By ELAINE ROBERTS
Weekly World News

1 "Assume a positive attitude about your mate and your marriage," urges Dr. Foley. "Make a list of your mate's good qualities. If you're like most people, you'll be surprised at how many positive traits he or she has that you've taken for granted.

"Carry your positive attitude into the bedroom. If you think your partner is an exciting lover, he or she will be. Thinking about your partner as desirable and attractive will make sex more rewarding."

2 Spend at least five minutes of each day discussing your partner's feelings. "Learning to understand the other person is a major step in bringing closeness back to the relationship," says the counselor.

3 Make your relationship with your spouse your first priority. "It should come before anything else, including the children, your job or your parents. A trouble-making triangle in a marriage needn't come from other women — it can come from anyone or anything that gets between a husband and wife."

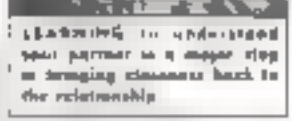
4 Make each day a new beginning in your marriage, Dr. Foley suggests. "Make it a point to rediscover each other's interests and activities. If you keep discovering new things about each other, you'll never get bored."

5 Learn how to express your natural loving nature. "If you are critical, you'll be angry at the least provocation. What you must do is inform the other person of your negative feelings without criticizing.

"For example, a bereaved comes home and finds the house in a mess.

"If he snaps, 'Do we have to live in a pigpen?' he's not communicating anything but his anger — and he'll only get an angry reply. If instead he says something like, 'It's very difficult for me to feel good about you or the house right now,' he's informing her of his feelings but leaving out the negative criticism.

"Leave the lines of communication open — don't close off the other person with a critical remark."



Learning to understand your partner is a major step in bringing closeness back to the relationship

Sky divers' midair wedding ends in tragedy

... when they drift into nuke plant's cooling tower!

COOLING SYSTEM TOWER at nuclear power plant where newlyweds Uli and Hana Sommer perished after getting blown off course

By WHITNEY ASQUE

A skydiving couple's dream of tying the knot at 12,000 feet turned to tragedy when the daring pair got blown off course — and dropped right into a giant cooling tower at a nuclear power plant!

Adventurous Uli and Hana Sommer were declared man and wife just moments before their deadly splashdown in the tower of the plant in Hannover, Germany.

Only a day or so of the dead couple's unrecognizable remains was recovered, two days later when rescue workers were finally able to go into the tower.

Uli and Hana had planned for more than a year to have the spectacular ceremony.

Included in their wedding party were a skydiving minister, two witnesses and a photographer, who recorded the historic event for posterity.

"Uli's and Hana's parachutes seemed to come out sort of sideways and they were pulled away from the rest of us like they were shot out of a cannon," said minister Horst Seaver.

"We all were supposed to go in different directions but from the way they sailed off I knew something was wrong."

Witnesses on the ground say the newlyweds' parachutes tangled, causing them to travel far off course before the chutes fully opened.

Emergency vehicles that were waiting on the ground immediately started chasing the wayward sky divers.

"They were obviously having trouble controlling their flight and we noticed they were heading for the cooling tower," Wagner said. "The wind just kept blowing them toward that plant.

"And when they got near the facility they were drawn to the top of that tower like metal to a magnet.

"When they disappeared into the stack I knew they were dead. They must have been boiled alive."

It was nearly two full days before workers could go into the tower to look for the couple's remains.

"It is a major project to cool the water in the tower and it had to be tested for radioactivity before anyone could go in," Wagner said.

"But we thought for the dignity of the couple we should at least try to see if there was anything left of them."

HOW TO SAVE YOUR FAILING MARRIAGE!

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

Are you afraid your marriage is doomed?

If you are, don't worry. Experts say the reasons you are so miserable can provide the keys to saving your marriage!

Here are statements that reveal common patterns in a doomed marriage, and what to do in each case to save the relationship, according to sociologist Dr. Thomas E. Lasswell:

1. "My partner lets me down just when I need him."

"You are looking for a brother-sister relationship with a lifelong constituency," said Dr. Lasswell. "You must satisfy your yearning for round-the-clock companionship by extending your network of friends. Don't rely totally on your mate."

2. "I feel deserted and rejected."

"You are a passionate, possessive person who longs to feel loved over basis as love forever," said Dr. Lasswell.

"Allow both yourself and your mate room freedom. Develop individual interests, and make a real effort to become so fascinating that your spouse will always find you attractive."

3. "My mate would be better off without me."

"Stop trying to win approval by making yourself a doormat," Dr. Lasswell advised. "You must learn to be more selfish.

"Get the satisfaction you desire out of doing things for yourself."

4. "My mate embarrasses me."

"You're a practical person with a 'shopping list' of requirements for cohabiting in love," Dr. Lasswell said.

"Why not focus on your own shortcomings?"

"Stop being blind to your mate's flaws. Appreciate them."

5. "We don't have fun together any more."

"You place great importance on the chase, but lose interest when you've won the affection of the person you pursued," Dr. Lasswell said.

"You say many long-term cohabitants and real spinsters. Prioritize your romantic evenings."

6. "My mate always forgets important anniversaries and birthdays."

"You believe in the kind of love found mostly in novels and movies — relationships where romance never dies," he said.

"Your best hope for a long-lasting relationship lies in realizing that once the initial excitement dies down, there is a great deal of joy from becoming a true companion and partner to your mate."

College Kids BELIEVE in Adam & Eve!

Do you believe in Adam and Eve? Nearly 56 percent of college students in a recent survey said they believe there were at least two sets of Adams and Eves — and maybe many more!

"I tend to agree with scholars who believe there were identical Adams and Eves appearing at the same time on the Asian continent, European continent, in Africa and here in America," said one respondent from the University of Colorado.

BLOOD-CURDLING BOOK BANNED IN 20 COUNTRIES!

FORBIDDEN VOODOO SECRETS that will make ANYONE fall in love with you!

By MIKE FOSTER World News Service

You can make the person of your dreams fall head over heels in love with you virtually overnight — by using voodoo!

That is the provocative claim of self-described voodoo priestess Marguerite Lumiere, author of the controversial new book, A Better Love Life Through Voodoo.

"Anyone, no matter how old, physically repulsive or unpleasant, can enjoy the happiness of a successful romance by following the simple steps outlined in this modest work," she declares.

The book — which includes several references to animal sacrifice — has been banned outright in nine 20 countries including most of heavily Catholic South America.

And even in the U.S. no publisher has been willing to put out an English language version. But Miss Lumiere, who lives in Haiti, agreed to make late excerpts of her book from the original French exclusively for our readers.

Here are some of her best tips:

♥FINDING YOUR MATE: If you are unsure which person you should pursue romantically, write the names of eight to ten available prospects on separate slips of paper. Then, without looking at them, throw each of the slips into a fire except the one that you feel is the perfect one you should target.

♥MAKING YOUR SWEETHEART FALL IN LOVE WITH YOU — Construct a voodoo doll out of cloth and stuff it with chicken feathers. Then secure an article of clothing worn by your loved one and cut a piece from it.

Use this scrap to make a shirt or dress for the doll.

Next, prick yourself with a pin and place a single hair from your head in the doll. Repeat these steps with a hair from the object of your desire. Finally, [illegible] get a little reasonable distance from you.

♥STOPPING YOUR LOVER FROM LEAVING YOU — Cook a pot of corn and add the tongue of a recently butchered rabbit, while reciting: "Your tongue leaves your heart behind."

In your mind, see yourself as you desire him to be or she will be drawn back by the scent of the corn.

PEOPLE GET SMARTER AT NIGHT!

Your dreams [illegible] make you happier, says [illegible] study!

Studying your dreams can help you resolve disturbing emotional problems and make your life happier, a noted psychologist says.

"People have a serious biological need to dream — it's a way to deal with stress. Your dreams give you dramatic stories that tell you what your life is really about," said Dr. Richard Corriere, author of the popular book The Dream Makers.

Based on his studies, Dr. Corriere offers these suggestions to help you get the most from your dreams.

● Remember your feelings in the dreams, not the "pictures." Ask yourself what you were feeling — don't try to interpret the dreams. Your psychological health will improve if you talk with someone about the feelings you experienced in your dreams.

● Ask yourself how aggressive you were in your dreams. If you failed to express yourself in your dreams, you probably fail to express yourself in your waking life.

● Ask yourself how active you were. Were you the star or the victim? The winner or the loser? Were you just observing the dream, or were you in there pitching? "If you are a victim in your dreams, you probably feel like a victim in life," Dr. Corriere said.

● If you can't remember the dream when you wake up, take a few minutes during the day to make up a dream based on the way you felt when you woke up. That will help you remember future dreams.

● Don't worry about nightmares. You always wake up before the disaster happens, so why worry about it?

● Recurrent dreams are a warning sign crying, "Pay attention!" They're telling you something you're afraid to face while awake.

● Don't worry about dreams being prophetic, because they rarely come true.

Men battle each other with power tools — in new Tough Guy sport!

By PAT WELLS / Weekly World News

LAREDO, Texas — Bloodthirsty sports fans are flocking to after-hours bars — to see daredevil carpenters fight duels with power tools!

"It's extremely dangerous. There have been at least three deaths and scores of injuries," declared an undercover cop who belongs to a statewide task force striving to shut down the illegal matches.

"I've seen these fighters go at each other with everything from 2-foot long power drills to electric screwdrivers.

"Often these men have been drinking heavily prior to the bouts and take terrible risks to prove their machismo."

BIZARRE FAD SWEEPING AMERICA!

The shocking trend reportedly started a year ago after a pair of carpenters in El Paso watched an old pirate film on TV and decided to reenact a sword fight scene with chainsaws.

"Frank and Joe Bob invited all their friends to come watch at a local bar," said an eyewitness. "People looked on in awe as they lunged and darted about like [Errol] Flynn. Joe Bob lost two fingers in the fight. But the crowd gave both men wild applause."

Since then the sport has spread like wildfire and there have been roughly 45 matches in the Lone Star State, said the cop.

"As interest has grown, spectators have demanded a greater variety of weapons. At one match, a man armed with an electric sander was pitted against one with a nail gun — and was killed.

"As many as 100 fans have been in attendance at some of these events, where they place bets ranging from $5 to $500."

State officials, anxious to avoid bad publicity for Texas — have been very reluctant to discuss the problem with reporters.

But the task force is cracking down hard on the activity,

Mommy made me eat the mud pie I baked in her oven!

KRISTIN in Moscow

Dear Dotti: I'm 10 years old. Yesterday I was playing around and decided to make a fancy mud pie in the kitchen while Mom my was at work. I was careful not to spill any of the dirt I brought in from the yard. I used a doll pan and really made a pretty pie. But when Mommy got home she went wild and spanked me. Then she made me eat two big bites of the mud pie to teach me a lesson. I threw up and she got even madder. Now she won't let me leave my room for a month. Tell her she's not being fair, Dotti. — Kristin in and a letter from your mother who told me quite a different story. For one thing, she said you'd pulled that mud pie stunt before and were warned not to do it ever again. She'd so told you baked the pie on a MW degree oven for more than an hour and could have burned the house to the ground. Given that new set of facts, I'm not about to tell your mother she's being unfair. To tell you the truth I think she deserves a medal!

Dear Kristin, I also recom-

Neighbor's hobby makes me BEG for his lovin'!

Dear Dotti: The man I married a couple of years ago turned out to be the world's biggest nerd, and it's a crying shame, too, because a big, thick, 12-inch ruler has NOTHING on Paul. If you know what I mean. But he is restricted on to something you celebrate like Christmas — once a year! I've got appetites, Dotti, and have always been highly sexed. When I try to turn Paul on, however, he looks at me like I'm a prostitute. I literally have to get down on my knees and BEG him for sex. Needless to say, I'm climbing the walls. What's wrong with him?" — Angela in Central City

The hottest gal in 10th

Yuck moved here recently and made quite an impact when she enrolled in our high school. I mean, Crystal is a drop-dead knockout — even sexier than me and I'm pretty darn sexy myself. All of the guys are going crazy and when she wears one of those little miniskirts of hers the whole damn school just about shuts down. She wasn't even here for two weeks when she snatched the captain of the high school football team — my boyfriend! — right out of my arms.

Dear Dumb, I'm what you say. But if the captain of the football team disliked me for a trivial reason I'd keep my mouth shut — and let the jerk discover the awful truth for himself!

I've fallen in love and I can't get up!

Dear Dotti: I fell head over heels in love with a wonderful woman a few months ago and our relationship has really blossomed to fact, we're planning a June wedding — and I'm sure we'll spend the rest of our lives together. My problem is sexual. For some reason, I just can't perform with Mary, though not for lack of trying. Maybe it's all the excitement. At the age of 26, I've certainly never had this problem happen to me before. Do you think this will pass, Dotti?" — Jack in Groves spontaneously, you wouldn't either!

What should I do to make lots of money?

Dear Dotti: I'm 13 and I have trouble making money. I've tried everything around the house but my parents only paid me a dollar a day so I didn't like it so I quit. Dotti, I like animals. Should I start a pet shop or get sitting business? — Ben in Adel

BEN in Adel

Dear Ben, Your parents violated state and federal labor laws when they hired you for just a dollar a day. If you're smart, you'll hire a lawyer to sue them broke and out. It might not win you any friends, but hey — you'll have money to burn and won't ever have to work again!

Men driving home game have run-in

By JOEL RUDMANN · Winnipeg Sun Staff Writer

Two men were stranded in the dark of night on a lonely stretch of Canadian highway when control of their car's engine and electrical system was suddenly taken over — by a hovering UFO!

The bizarre encounter with the mysterious spaceship unfolded as 22 year-old bachelors Paul Shuaro and Craig Pulloch were returning from a hockey game in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Bawling beast beats slaughterhouse blade!

Bighearted butchers spare weeping water buffalo

THEY CHEATED CHEFFIE and spend the rest of his days being cared for by gentle monks

By JOE GERGEN

Stunned slaughterhouse workers refused to butcher a whopping water buffalo after the sad-eyed animal dropped to its knees like a pleading child — and giant tears streamed down its cheeks!

"People think animals don't cry, but that beast was sobbing like a baby," packing plant boss Billy Fong told reporters in Hong Kong.

"There were a dozen big, burly men standing there — boys who make their living slaughtering animals — and tears started welling up in their eyes, too.

"The men were so moved by the animal that they chipped in and bought that buffalo with their own money. Then they gave it to a Buddhist monastery so it could live out its life in peace."

The touching tale of the blubbering buffalo began as workers led the 1,200-pound beast toward the packing plant to be carved into steaks and stew meat.

As they neared the slaughterhouse door, the anguished animal suddenly stopped dead in its tracks and knelt on its front legs. Then the tears started to flow.

"When I saw that supposedly dumb animal crying, and saw the fear and sadness in its eyes, I started trembling and they were as amazed as I was. We started pulling and pushing on that buffalo and it wouldn't budge. It just sat and cried.

People think animals don't cry, but that beast was sobbing like a baby!

"We all had chills because that animal sensed we had us. We looked at each other and we knew none of us was going to be able to kill it. The problem was figuring out what we were going to do with the darn thing."

Finally the butchers decided to pool their money and send the weeping beast on a lifelong vacation with some buffalo-loving monks.

"We couldn't get it to leave until we promised it it wasn't going to die — and then it got up and went right along with us," Shiu said.

"You can believe that or not. It's the truth, strange as it sounds.

"It was almost like that enormous dumb animal could understand every word we were saying."

For some slaughterhouse workers, coming face-to-face with a crybaby buffalo was a lot more than they could stand.

"Three of the men quit right there on the spot," said foreman Fong.

"They said they'd never be able to kill another animal without thinking of this one with tears pouring out of its big, sad eyes and running down its face."

We should always keep a little money in reserve for an emergency. This does just apply to love.

Chinese spy satellite crashed in my backyard

Diamond medallion of Chairman Mao may be worth over $2 million!

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Everybody thinks the Chinese spy satellite that fell from space on March 11 crashed safely in the South Atlantic but nothing could be further from the truth.

In fact, parts of the 2-ton space vehicle slammed into Paul Morlen's backyard just west of Birmingham — and he's got a diamond encrusted medallion of Chairman Mao Zedong to prove it!

Not only that, the souvenir is going to make the 48-year-old trucker filthy rich. Private collectors from as far away as Saudi Arabia are involved in a furious bidding war that has already hit $2.6 million — and there's no end in sight!

"Pennies from Heaven? Try a couple of million from Heaven!" chortled Morlen. "This is better than winning the lottery.

"And to think that I was reading my newspaper when the damn thing tore a hole in my backyard. Hey, Chairman Mao is my boy now. Those Reds can bomb my yard with anything they want."

The mind-twisting space drama unfolded around 10 p.m. on March 11 when Morlen heard what sounded like a car crash in the stand of trees behind his home.

Trotting out to investigate, Morlen pointed his flashlight at a smoking crater big enough to hold a beach ball.

Taking a closer look, he saw bits of metal stuck in the dirt. Digging with his fingers, he unearthed the medallion and connected it with the satellite.

"The satellite crash was all over the news so I knew it was going to hit somewhere," said Morlen. "But when I saw the medallion with Mao's face on it, I knew what I had.

"I started to call the local TV station but I decided I didn't want all the publicity and hassle. I called a jeweler I know and when he saw what I had, he called a New York auction house.

"They checked it out with collectors who are willing to pay a fortune for it."

The Chinese spy satellite was launched into orbit in 1969. In addition to cameras and other in the Atlantic. I don't really care where it came down.

"I got my piece of the pie and that's all that counts. I'm just walking on my money as I can make it back and do a little fish [illegible] for the rest of my life."

Parents' stress determines a baby's sex!

The sex of babies can be forecast with amazing accuracy by determining the amount of stress on each parent

Several studies on humans and rats all support the finding that low-stressed parents (or the low-stressed member of couples) play a crucial role in the sex of the child, says top psychologist Dr. Donald H. Schuster.

One example of the role stress plays was seen in a study of women impregnated by rape. Almost all gave birth to girls.

The psychologist said the rule of thumb — which has been shown to be accurate in 71 to 91 percent of all cases — is that the parent who is under the lesser strain at the time of conception will more likely be the sex of their offspring.

STILL A BEAUTY AT 102!

By JUNE SAWYER, Weekly World News

The first Miss World, who won her title back in 1912, is 102 years old today — and still a beauty.

Alice Hyde beams a fetching smile when she recalls her crowning days at the very first Miss World Contest held at Walthamstow Film Studios in London, England.

Entering under the name of Lavender Lee, Alice remembers the original contest as a grueling test of talent and physical hardiness compared to the fluffy walk through the girls go through today.

The 12 beauties battling to be the first Miss World not only had to wear swimsuits, but had to swim, row, perform a person test, show their ability as ballroom dancers and sing.

Modern day women's libbers certainly couldn't criticize the old contest for wanting an empty-headed, pretty face.

"Today's glamour girls don't know how lucky they are," chortled Alice. "All they need to do is walk on stage and look beautiful. I had to work hard to earn my title and I think it is a crime shame that they have not stuck to that format."

Not only have the requirements changed but so have the ideas of the perfect female shape. In those pre-World War I days, curvaty gals were out.

"Everyone said I was good looking as I suppose I must have been. It was not a virtue in those days to have a big bust," she said. "You had to have a big bottom to be fashionable."

When Alice won, she became the toast of London and was whisked off into a giddy glamorous social whirl.

"I had a marvelous time," she said. "I was escorted by royals and all kinds of titled people. Most did not exactly swoon, but there were flurries of them."

But fame was fleeting for the beaming beauty. Heralded as the English Mary Pickford, she succeeded in making two silent films before her movie career fizzled.

She was twice wed, lived in Spain for many years, became a writer and finally moved back to England to be with her daughter.

ABOVE, GRAY-HAIRED GLAMOR GIRL Alice Hyde still wears a fetching smile. In 1912 pretty 18-year-old Alice, inset, won the first Miss World Contest.

New health menace threatens beachgoers . . .

RABID SEA GULLS!

OCEAN CITY, Md. — A new menace threatens the lives of every man, woman and child who visits the nation's beaches this summer: Crazed, rabid sea gulls!

By LISA GERARDI
Weekly World News

The vicious seabirds have already killed at least 14 people and are spreading the deadly rabies virus rapidly throughout America's coastal areas, according to a journalist who says he has copied a confidential memo on the subject from the Centers for Control in Atlanta.

"The experts at the CDC don't want to create a panic, but the situation has them very worried," says magazine writer Alexander Tetos.

"This is the first instance in which the virus has spread to birds and it seems to be sweeping through populations of the ocean-going gull very rapidly.

"Even worse, it appears that the birds' virus spreads readily to man. There have already been 14 confirmed deaths among beachgoers and fishermen, caused when short attacks from rabid birds or by contact with diseased birds' feces."

WRITER Alexander Tetos says that the birds were ruling the beach area — and by the time they came down with rabies themselves it was too late to save their lives.

Tetos, who has been investigating the bizarre outbreak since it began last year, says the attacks by rabid sea gulls are vicious and unusual. The infected birds — crazed by the effects of the virus — are aggressive.

In one case, 27 infected birds dive-bombed a family of five while they were sunning on a Delaware beach, clawing and pecking them until they were dazed and bleeding from numerous wounds.

Because no one suspected that the birds were ruling the beach area — and by the time they came down with rabies themselves it was too late to save their lives.

"The authorities are keeping this thing quiet because they don't want to harm the economies of seaside towns dependent on tourism," he says. "They don't want the public to panic and avoid the beaches.

"That's a troublesome concept to me. They're risking the lives of thousands of Americans who might be attacked and hurt or killed by rabid sea gulls. I think they should get the word out and advise people what to do if they're attacked. They have a duty to protect the public."

BEWARE: Contact with these rabid sea gulls could cost you your life

Woman mistakes bubblegum for hemorrhoid suppository

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News Staff Writer

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. — Absentminded mom Bonnie Cartana got so engrossed in her favorite soap opera one afternoon that she chewed up her rectal suppository, thinking it was bubblegum — and used her bubblegum as a rectal suppository!

"I got so mixed up — and so embarrassed, Bonnie, 36 — "It popped the hell out of me when I realized where I'd stuck my bubblegum — and I didn't think I'd ever get the taste of that suppository out of my mouth."

The mortifying turn of events unfolded April 11 as spellbound Bonnie sat glued to The Guiding Light on the TV set in her den [illegible]

"I was really concentrating on my program, you know, and I unwrapped a piece of bubblegum without really thinking about it and popped it into my mouth," the shaken lady recalled. "I took about three good chews and suddenly it hit me that [illegible] was wrong. I spit the stuff out and looked at it and immediately realized I'd been chewing on my hemorrhoid suppository."

"So I washed my mouth out real good and started looking around for my bubblegum. And when it finally dawned on me what I'd done with that, gosh all I could think was, 'Oh, my God!'"

The panic-stricken widow was so afraid she'd gummed up her works for good that she rushed to a hospital emergency room and pleaded with dumbfounded doctors to do whatever it took to correct her mind-boggling mistake.

"They said not to worry about it — that like all bad things, that bubblegum would pass," bumbling Bonnie told a reporter.

"But I said man, I wanted it out of there now, before I started blowing bubbles or something. So they took me into one of their rooms and removed it — and the minute they did it was like a giant

Volcano spits out world's largest diamond!

By RANDY JEFFRIES (Weekly World News)

LIKASI, Zaire — A volcano deep in the remote Mitumba Mountains is spewing huge diamonds from the bowels of the Earth.

And one of the treasures gems is the largest in recorded history!

"It's worth at least 75 million and weighs a staggering 2.1 pounds," says South African geologist Dr. Arthur Gibson. "And since the volcano is still erupting, an even bigger stone might emerge any day."

Dr. Gibson and his research team were called in by the Zaire government to investigate the boiling crater which the natives say disgorged the huge diamond.

The area has been closed to the public and, for obvious reasons, no one is being kept a closely guarded secret.

"The volcano is an unpredictable thing and the men who found it actually stumbled on it by accident," says Dr. Gibson, a 20-year veteran of the diamond fields who has studied the Mitumba area and its history.

"When they ventured into the steaming crater, they saw a strange glint of light from rock deposited with unusually bright crystals.

"Three tribal chiefs agreed not to tell anyone of the find and quickly formed themselves into a diamond syndicate."

The 1st diamond, a 620 carat monster called "The Africa Star," is being held along with hundreds of others in a heavily guarded vault until the government decides what to do with the stones. The Star is 1,071 carats bigger than the previous largest diamond — the 1,106 carat Cullinan, which was found in South Africa in 1905.

Deadly plagues kill 100 million people in a horrifying wave of global epidemics. Pollution turns the Atlantic Ocean into a dead sea. And Iraq drops nuclear warheads on Israel, touching off World War III!

That's the terrifying outlook for the rest of the 1990s from the 20th century's foremost psychic Edgar Cayce — who foretold the events in a secret diary a few days before his death in 1945 and instructed that they be kept under wraps until April 4, 1998.

'He foresaw AIDS, the collapse of the Soviet Union — and the rise of Saddam Hussein!' — David Martindale

"Edgar Cayce was well aware of the apocalyptic events we will face at the close of the millennium but for some reason or another he wasn't prepared to warn us until now," declared David Martindale, Washington-based author of the riveting new book Edgar Cayce And The End Times — Prophecies For 1998 And Beyond.

"The diary is short, actually written in longhand, but the effect is absolutely devastating.

"There's no doubt that the predictions are accurate," he continued, "because a number of them have already come to pass.

"Mr. Cayce foresaw the advent of AIDS, the collapse of the Soviet Union and the rise of Iraq's Saddam Hussein as an evil force in the Middle East — events that occurred prior to April 4, 1998, but were included in the diary.

"The thrust of the little book, however, says no events that will come to pass between now and 1998 — events so cataclysmic they can only signal the end of the world.

"The suggestion, of course, is that we are living in the End Times that are so frightfully foretold in the Bible."

Martindale's report came as a shock to Cayce experts, few of whom realized that [illegible] wrote a [illegible] diary, choosing instead to entrust it to a friend with instructions to release the contents in 1998.

The author himself declined to name the person who gave him the diary. But he confided that "the gentleman was a Cayce friend and confidant who didn't even open the cover of the diary until he brought it to me and asked for help in publishing its contents."

The diary includes seven predictions for the rest of 1998, 1997, 1996 and 1999 — but none beyond.

It also contains the warning, "Let all wise men heed the predictions herein. The earthly reign of the Lord truly is at hand."

Here are the predictions.

1. In late 1998, a wave of deadly plagues sweep the planet, killing at least 100 million people and permanently disabling at least 150 million more.

Families will be torn apart — and survivors will pray for death that they will not find. Unlike AIDS, which is confined mostly to high risk groups, the plagues of 1998 will be much less exclusive — striking people from all walks of life.

2. Also in 1998, acid rains unlike anything in history devastate the rain forests in South America, unleashing a host of deadly new viruses that had been confined to the area for millions of years, contributing to the plagues sweeping the planet.

3. In 1997, unknown sources of pollution that suddenly appear in "hot spots" on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean extinguish marine life, turning the ocean into a "dead sea" and creating a world wide shortage of food.

5. In the summer of 1991 billions of locusts appear in the U.S., ravaging crops throughout the food belt.

The devastation continues as earthquakes in New York, Florida, Texas, Illinois, Wisconsin, Oregon and California cripple America's continental infrastructure, leading to financial collapse.

8. In 1998, a massive hole in the ozone opens up over Europe, exposing the entire continent to the sun's deadliest, cancer-causing rays.

Within months, skin cancer afflicts half the population. Children are especially hard hit — and millions die.

6. In 1999, Saddam Hussein attacks Israel with nuclear missiles, prompting U.S. intervention and the onset of World War III.

During this war, a power hungry and evil alliance led by Red China defeats a Western alliance led by the U.S.

Controlling the world's resources and killer the Chinese fulfill a Bible prophecy forcing people to forsake religion and wear "the mark of the beast" — 666 — on their hands.

7. Also in 1999, a child Cayce calls "Elimeon" appears in the Holy Land and calls himself "the Messiah." The boy ushers in an era of global peace and harmony which hasn't been seen on Earth since the Garden of Eden.

Wild and wacky ways to relieve STRESS!

By GORDON ELLIS / Weekly World News

You can relieve stress by doing wild, zany things, says a prominent psychologist. "Wacky ways of relieving stress are effective, simple and fun," said Dr. Frederick Koenig. "Being serious can make matters worse.

"Just thinking about doing something that is wacky makes you feel better because you are taking the world less seriously," explained Dr Koenig.

"As soon as you do that, you will feel less tense and pressured."

Dr. Koenig, who is a social psychologist, suggested several unique things you can do to relieve stress:

● Soak your feet in gelatin. "For soothing relief from tension, gently place your feet in a bowl of gelatin," he said.

"Curl your toes, open and close them and let the gelatin squeeze through."

● Buy a toy you liked in childhood. "If you liked yo- yos go to the store and buy one," Dr. Koenig said. "See if you can still yo-yo.

"Drawing on childhood delights is a great way to reduce tension."

● Talk back to your TV set. "If a commercial asks if you've tried a product," Dr. Koenig said, "say, 'No. And I don't intend to.' Or pick out a character you don't like and tell them off. This can be great fun."

● Attend a movie more than once. "Get away a Saturday and go see three movies you'd like to see — one after another," Dr. Koenig said.

"As soon as you walk out of one movie, go into another one. Buy some popcorn, sit back and enjoy."

● Send greeting cards that are out-of-season. "For example, send Valentine cards to your friends during any month of month but February," Dr. Koenig said.

"This will get you into a conversation about your thinking and you'll feel better because you're not alone."

● Talk to yourself. "Find a private place where people won't think you're crazy and have a conversation with yourself," Dr. Koenig said. "Ask yourself questions and answer them. Or pick out a character you don't like and tell them off. This can be great fun."

● Eating by candlelight. "Eating by candlelight or in doors in a room lit by candles," Dr. Koenig said.

"Candlelight has an aura of the world about that's pleasing and beautiful.

"Most societies have developed ways of doing wacky things," Dr. Koenig concluded. "Like carnivals or festivals where people dress up and do hang things. For one day, you're not yourself.

"This sort of break is good for you, but there aren't enough of them.

"That's why I recommend doing something odd whenever you feel stressed.

"It will lighten your load and it will make you feel less stressful."

After parents ban marriage . . .

Star-crossed lovers bungle suicide attempts four times!

By MIKE FOSTER Weekly World News

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — A determined suicide-pact couple drove their car off a cliff, tried to gas themselves, jumped from the roof of a 16-story office building and finally attempted to shoot each other in the head. But incredibly, each time they survived.

"I guess God just didn't want us to die," said Edmundo Lorca as he and his sweetheart, Tia Vasquez, recovered from a variety of serious injuries at a city hospital.

Police say that the lovebirds, who, in their teens, had grown inseparable because their parents disapproved of their relationship and refused to give them permission to marry.

Last month they agreed to end their lives by driving Lorca's 1978 Chevrolet convertible off a 90-foot cliff near his parent's home. "Apparently the car flipped on the way down and they were both thrown clear, landing on a ledge," revealed police inspector Jesus Herrera. Edmundo suffered a broken wrist and collarbone, while Tia suffered a concussion — but that didn't stop the death-seeking duo from another attempt two weeks later.

COUPLE:
- drove over 90-ft. cliff!
- tried gassing themselves!
- jumped off roof of 16-story building!
- and missed when they tried blowing out their brains!

"The boy has admitted that they once tried to gas their relatives using an oven at his grandmother's house," said the inspector.

"As they waited outside for gas to fill up the home, it seems the air conditioner kicked on and a spark caused the house to explode. Fortunately, no one was injured in the incident."

That night the desperate young lovers leapt from the roof of a 16-story office building hand-in-hand — and landed on the roof of an adjacent seven-story hotel. Lorca broke both his legs and Tia shattered several ribs. But this time the couple had a backup plan ready. Lorca had brought along a pair of 22-caliber pistols, so they could blow each other's brains out.

"This scheme failed when his gun jammed — and she missed entirely," said the inspector. "Fortunately, the shots alerted hotel guests, who summoned an ambulance."

The pair are in stable condition, hospital officials say. The teens' concerned parents have promised to seek family counseling.

Fascinating facts about the average American

You are an average American if you: Eat 20 lb. meals a year, drink 274 beers, goof off 45 minutes a day at work and earn more than $8,000.

Washington-based journalists Allan Petzoldt and William Hazel spent 2½ years digging up information like this for their just-published book American Averages: Amazing Facts of Everyday Life.

"We just loved it!" said Petzoldt. "After years of reporting on the bizarre and the abnormal, it was fun to cover the average and ordinary."

He said Hazel discovered that the average American swallows 238 aspirins a year, has three additional days sex and laughs 15 times a day.

Here's more:

- 91 percent of Americans believe in God, down from 94 percent in 1956.
- 66 percent of Americans believe in the Devil, compared to 68 percent of Catholics.
- The average churchgoer gives $128.30 to his church a year.
- Between the ages of 20 and 65, the average American eats 35 tons of food but gains only five pounds.
- The average American who drives gets in 11 years the equivalent of one year behind the wheel.
- The average American spends eight hours a day on housework if she doesn't have an outside job, 5.5 hours if she does.
- We're most likely to die in March, least likely in August.
- If you're ordinary, you have two yards of skin and eat 160 potatoes a year, 15 pounds of chocolate and 17 pounds of candy.
- 3,700 children run away from home on a typical day.
- The average family owning a Monopoly board plays the game nine times a year.

NEW REVELATION TURNS TINSELTOWN UPSIDE DOWN!

Many superstars are virgins, says top Hollywood madam

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — A surprising number of Hollywood's top stars are duds as lovers, says Hollywood's busiest madam — and believe it or not, many of Tinseltown's biggest heartthrobs are so disastrous in the sack that they're still virgins!

By LISA MERAKIS
Weekly World News

"We see lots of beautiful people who are very sad and very lonely," says the madam, who asked to be identified only as Suky T.

"Many famous stars and celebrities pay my girls big money — and do nothing but talk and hold hands.

"A lot of the stars seem to avoid actually having sex because they're afraid they won't live up to their image. They're sexy, good-looking guys but they don't know the first thing about how to satisfy a woman."

Suky T., an attractive 46-year-old blonde, says she has been in the sex business since she was 16 and has run her own establishment in Beverly Hills since 1980.

She says most are worse off today than stars were when she first started working.

"There is so much competition they have to focus almost exclusively on their careers and haven't got time for dating and making love," she says.

"And many of them have developed terrible drug dependencies that cause them to put getting high ahead of getting laid.

"When they do find a girlfriend, the studio doesn't approve. Or their managers fix them up with starlets they don't like and they wind up with a platonic relationship."

Many female stars are reserved to be as hesitant on sex as males, Suky says, although she admits she doesn't know this from experience. But the women tend to remain celibate and suffer quietly, she says, while the guys tend to buy love from hot sexy call girls.

"People would be shocked if they knew what troublers to bed some of their favorite stars are," Suky says.

Simple tips to...

BANISH WRINKLES — FAST!

Stand on your head. Practice a wrinkle-free smile. Take a cold shower. Do these things and you will have a fewer wrinkles, says a top beauty and skin expert.

Everyone has to grow older, but you no longer have to accept wrinkles as an inevitable part of the aging process. Dr. Calvin Griffiths, a prominent plastic surgeon, said gravity can help to avoid wrinkles.

"Lower your head between your knees or hang it over the edge of a bed 10 minutes a day," he said. "Gravity will pull your eyes. "Practice a smile that moves only your lips."

● Sleep on a sheet heard or elevate your head with extra pillows. This will prevent fluids from building up in your face, causing skin tissue to break down and wrinkles to form.

● Take a cold shower every morning. "It helps tone up your facial muscles," said Dr. Griffiths.

● Avoid eating polyunsaturated margarine, salad oils or any foods that are fried in polyunsaturated vegetable oils.
